What's New on IACP Net?

The Quest-Response Recognition Program

IACP Net is rewarding one lucky member with a trip to the 2010 IACP Conference in Orlando, Florida. To register, simply respond to two or more Quests in our Quest-Response service any month from March through September 2010. For every month that you qualify, you'll receive an entry into our drawing for up to $1,000 in reimbursed travel expenses and one paid conference registration, up to $350. Please log on today to assist other departments with your experiences by answering a Quest or two. For complete rules, please see the Quest-Response Recognition Program customer bulletin, available on IACP Net.

Apply Today for the IACP/LogIn Excellence in Victim Services Award

Applications are now being accepted for the 2010 IACP/LogIn Excellence in Victim Services Award. The IACP Victim Services Committee and LogIn, Inc., created this award to honor law enforcement agencies that make exemplary efforts in providing innovative service to victims of crime. This award recognizes agencies that utilize best practices, including effective partnerships, training methods, and performance monitoring tools to place victims at the center of their problem-solving efforts. Let your community know that your department focuses on the needs of crime victims.

For more information about the Excellence in Victim Services Award, or to apply for a nomination, visit the IACP website, e-mail Keely McCarthy, or call 800.843.4227 x810. All applications must be submitted and postmarked no later than May 1, 2010.

DATABASES

Shooting Dynamics: Elements of Time & Movement in Shooting Incidents

In the analysis and reconstruction of shooting incidents, a key element is often the timing involved in shooting, reacting, and moving. These data can be significant because they may be helpful in defining significant elements. These elements can include: how much movement or distance a person could have achieved before or during the shot sequence. Other determinations can relate to perception, reaction, and response before and during the shooting. This paper examines elements involved in shooting incidents including the performance of both shooter and target person. This document is located in the Core Database under document #610352.

Social Media in Policing: Nine Steps for Success

Social media tools offer police departments a way to listen to their citizens and hear what is being said about the department, crime, the quality of life, and events. They also offer the department the ability to shape the conversation. With a well-planned strategy for using social media tools, departments can actually increase control of their reputation. Law enforcement agencies are gradually coming to use social media tools, but some still find it strange. Making sense of all the available Internet tools and methods can seem daunting, but with a little knowledge, a strategy, a department policy, and some determination, law enforcement agencies stand to gain significant benefits by putting their departments into the world of Web 2.0. This document is located in the Core Database under document #610251.
